Library Lights Out; Elevator Traps 2

The electricity in Morris Library went out Tuesday afternoon, for the second consecutive day, trapping a student worker and a Civil Service employee in an elevator for about an hour.

A library spokesman did not identify the persons trapped.

A spokesman at the Physical Plant said that as soon as the call came in "everybody from our department went over there." No report on the cause was available, although the power was restored in an hour.

The electricity was cut off Monday when a cable was accidentally damaged by a construction worker.

Response Good In Market Study

Students taking part in the marketing survey on campus should make certain that the names of the towns where purchases are made are recorded before they turn in their weekly diary form, according to David J. Luck, professor of marketing.

Luck, who is in charge of the study, said the returns from the first group of participating students were excellent. He said there was a 100 per cent return from the women's organized units and almost that high from the men's.

Student Affairs Office Takes Action Against 5 Offenders

Two students, one the driver of an automobile clocked at speeds exceeding 100 miles an hour, have been suspended by the Office of Student Affairs.

The driver, Brendt Burn, 21, a sophomore from Morrison, and four passengers were picked up April 30 by State Police, who said the car was being driven more than 100 miles per hour in a 65-m.p.h. zone. He was fined in Magistrate Court $50 plus costs for illegal transportation of alcoholic beverages and $75 plus costs for speeding. He has been suspended from the University through the summer term.

William Breymer, 22, a Thirsty Freshman Given Sabbatical

John Zweng, 18, freshman from Bloomington, has been suspended from the University through the summer term for a second underage drinking offense in six weeks.

The Office of Student Affairs said Zweng was placed on disciplinary probation March 17 after the first offense. On April 26 he was fined $100 plus $5 costs for a second offense and suspended.

sophomore from LaGrange, was suspended because he was involved in an incident associated with drinking. The student affairs office said Breymer was already on disciplinary probation for shooting up private property while on a hunting trip winter quarter. He was suspended through the summer quarter and his re-entry to the University depends on a report of profitable work experience during his separation from SIU.

Marshal Day, a freshman from LaGrange, on disciplinary probation because of the shooting incident with Breymer, was dropped for academic reasons at the end of winter quarter. The Office of Student Affairs said he would be ineligible to re-enter the University for six months.

A 21-year-old student from Auburn lost his motor vehicle privileges and was given an official reprimand. His name was not released by officials because there was no civil action or suspension involved.

Before taking action, the Office of Student Affairs called in the parents of the five for a conference. One youth, a 19-year-old freshman from LaGrange neglected to ask his parents to attend the conference, according to the office spokesman. He has been declared ineligible to attend classes until his parents have talked with University officials. His name also was not released.

Enrollments to Double by '75

Master Plan Warns Educators Of Approaching College Crisis

More students attend college in Illinois than in England, Ireland, Sweden, Norway and Denmark combined.

This is one of the statements in the proposed provisional master plan for higher education in Illinois. Illinois public and private colleges and universities enroll some 243,000 resident students plus another 17,500 in extension courses for credit, the study found. "The total enrollments in Illinois higher education are virtually equal to the total of Germany. . . and are greater than any other European country except the Soviet Union."

The report cites the rapid expansion that has already taken place "and the further growth that lies ahead."

"As recently as the 1933-34 school year, the six state universities enrolled only 15,684 resident students. Their greatest enrollment before World War II totaled 20,844. As recently as 1953-54, their enrollments totalled only 31,847. Today they total 76,772."

Illinois, the study pointed out, has 121 colleges and universities and only three states have more. They enrolled about 243,000 in 1963.

"The college-age youth of 1980 are already born," the report stated. The College Enrollments Committee estimated total enrollments in Illinois will increase to 276,000 in 1965, to 392,000 in 1970, to 499,000 in 1975, and 555,000 in 1980.

"It is evident that a problem of great urgency is to provide for such enrollments. This is the first concern of the master plan," the report stated.

It expects enrollments in the public colleges and universities alone will double between 1965 and 1975, from 152,000 to 306,000.

Many of the basic recommendations have been reported previously, such as the emphasis on commuter institutions and promotion of technical and semi-technical programs. This focuses on the problems of students who must obtain their education in a commuter institution, and the lower costs inherent in such a program.

Some of the recommendations bear more directly on

SIU than the others, and these will be discussed in the third story of this series.

PRIZE WINNER—This silk quilt, made more than 70 years ago by Mrs. Alice Morris Beal, has been presented to the historical collection of the School of Home Economics. It won several blue ribbons at the Illinois State Fair. Two of Mrs. Beal's descendants, Frank Bridges (left) and R.E. Bridges, Jr. display the quilt to Ritta Whitesel, associate professor of home economics.

Prize-Winning Quilt of 1890s Added to Home Ec Collection

A silk quilt that won state fair blue ribbons in the '90s has been presented to the SIU School of Home Economics for its historic collection of homemaking articles.

Each tiny scrap of colorful silk had its special significance to Mrs. Alice Morris Beal of Johnson County as she lavished her time and skill on the quilt for five years. She started the quilt in 1885 and finished it in 1890.

Pieces of ties worn by her grandfather, Maj. Andrew Jackson Kuykendall, while serving in Congress after his military service in the Union Army, and some badges he wore to conventions of the then-young Republican Party, are found in the quilt, as is a pansy from Mrs. Beal's trousseau hat.

The quilt, which Eileen E. Quigley, dean of the School of Home Economics, rates as "one of the finest and most beautiful I have ever seen," is bound with a wide binding or rich purple velvet, elaborately embroidered. The pieces are joined with gold cross-stitches.

Donors of the quilt are Mrs. Beal's daughters, Miss Gene

Parties Report Gains In Session on Rights

WASHINGTON -- Senate leaders of both parties reported progress Tuesday in a conference aimed at ironing out differences among supporters of the House-passed civil rights bill.

An initial conference lasting more than two hours, attended by Atty. General Robert F. Kennedy and his aides, was devoted to a discussion of some 40 amendments of a technical nature. "I think they are making some progress," Kennedy told newsmen as he left the meeting.

This view was echoed both by Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, GOP Senate leader, and Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, assistant Democratic leader and floor manager of the bill.

Another meeting of the group was set for today and others are in prospect on subsequent days in a continuing effort to hammer out amendments to the bill in hopes of bringing about its passage.

The Senate completed its 48th day of its civil rights debate Tuesday, with Southern opponents showing no signs of relenting.

Earlier in the day Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said he hopes to "break the ice" on the bill when the first jury trial amendments are brought up today.

Various proposals are pending to require jury trials for contempt in civil rights cases, or to limit the punishment a judge may order without a jury trial.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, as well as other department officials, met Tuesday with the Senate leaders in the office of Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois.

In the Senate, the debate continued in leisurely fashion though Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., protested to his colleagues that the time for all reasonable debate is "clearly drawing to a close."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, assistant Democratic leader and floor manager of the bill, said he was looking for an agreement that would make it possible to get the two-thirds majority necessary to choke off a filibuster by Southern opponents of the bill.

Dominican Troops Called Out To Halt Destruction by Mobs

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic--The Dominican Republic's embattled civilian junta sought Tuesday to quell a spreading strike and mounting disorder with troopaction, a court order and radio appeals.

Jose Salvador Velazquez, president of the Dominican Court of Appeals, ordered striking taxi and bus drivers to return to work within 48 hours. The newspaper Prensa Libre said the transit services would be "militarized" if the strikers did not comply.

Helmeted troops with bayonets patroled the capital's streets after three days of rioting in which two persons have been killed and dozens injured.

Donald Reid Cabral, president of the ruling triumvirate, said in a radio-television address that 548 persons had been arrested and property damage was estimated at $100,000.

Reid Cabral said some politicians "in and out of the country" are seeking to take advantage of the situation by supporting "anarchic" aims of the strikers. The junta leader cast blame on Cuba's Fidel Castro regime when he said Havana radio has announced some acts of agitation "several hours in advance."

University students declared solidarity with the striking transport workers, and dock workers walked off the job in support of the drivers' four-day-old strike.

Prompt Action Set On Appalachia Bill

WASHINGTON--The administration laid its program for the restoration of Appalachia's economy before Congress Tuesday and got an assurance of prompt action.

Rep. Charles A. Buckley, R-N.Y., chairman of the House Public Works Committee, told Undersecretary of Commerce Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., the committee would act "decisively and quickly" on the $228-million, 10-state program.

President Johnson, at the White House breakfast with Democratic congressional leaders, urged quick action both on the Appalachian bill and on his more general anti-poverty program, House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., reported.

Roosevelt, who heads the President's Appalachian Regional Commission, was the first witness at hearings on the bill worked out by the commission to meet the needs of the impoverished.

French Locomotives Are Sold to Cuba

WASHINGTON--A spokesman said Tuesday the United States expressed its serious concern to senior French officials in an unsuccessful effort to block the sale of 20 French locomotives to Cuba.

The locomotive deal is seen in government quarters here as a serious blow to the U.S. policy of economic boycott of Cuba. But informed officials said there appears to be very little likelihood that the delivery of the locomotives can be prevented.

British Troops Reinforce Aden

LONDON--Britain ordered more troops to Aden Tuesday in preparation for stronger action to defend its base guarding British oil investments in the Middle East.

Defense sources said 600 men of the Lancashire Fusiliers plus a tactical headquarters from Northern Ireland would be airlifted immediately to the big port and base at the southwest tip of the Arabian Peninsula.

They will bring British strength in Aden to about 3,000 men, backed by jets of the Royal Air Force.

Their immediate task, informed sources said, would be a punitive expedition against tribesmen fighting a guerrilla war against the British-protected South Arabian Federation, which joins the Aden crown colony with the 14 sheikhdoms of the former Aden protectorate stretching along the south coast of the peninsula.

The long-term objective is to convince the guerrillas, Yemen's republican regime and President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic that Britain will not be driven out of its Aden base. The base is considered essential to the protection of Western oil interests in the peninsula as well as a staging post on the Commonwealth defense line to the Far East.

Fulbright in London, Sees Douglas-Home

LONDON--U.S. Sen. J. W. Fulbright and British Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home discussed the intricacies and dangers of the Cyprus dispute Tuesday.

The Arkansas Democrat, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, called at No. 10 Downing St. at the start of a Cyprus fact-finding mission for President Johnson. He also will visit Greece and Turkey but said he does not have time to go to Cyprus.

Don't Fence Us In

One of the more interesting pastimes of campus election week is observing the jockeying of various campus groups for position -- who has endorsed whom, what strange alliances are rumored, who the campus politicians are betting on.

This year the Daily Egyptian has not endorsed a candidate for student body president. We presented their platforms Tuesday. They contain nothing warranting a special effort either for or against one of the slates. We are aware of no issue where an Egyptian endorsement would serve the public interest.

In the past the Egyptian has endorsed candidates. It should do so in the future if the campus interest merits it.

A sense of proportion is also useful here. Our endorsement might solidify a trend, but it would not be earth-shaking. We happen to feel that you, the voters, have the candidates assessed already.

5 Seats Available On SIU-Oxford Flight to Europe

About five openings are still available on an SIU-arranged flight to Europe this summer.

The flight is via chartered Super Constellation. The plane will leave St. Louis on June 17 and return from Paris on Aug. 27.

The program is open to all bonafide SIU students who register for the SIU-Oxford Summer Study Program. It will include a two-week tour of the British Isles, four weeks of study at Oxford, and four weeks of touring on the continent. The cost of this "package" is $1,250.

In addition, SIU staff and faculty members, or members of their immediate families including those of students, may qualify for the "flight only" phase of the program.

This provides them with seats on the aircraft from St. Louis to Prestwick, Scotland, and from Paris to St. Louis for $320. They are responsible for their other costs for their summer in Europe.

Douglas L. Rennie, assistant professor of sociology, said about five vacancies are available on the plane in either of the two categories. Reservations may be made with Ray Nagel at 110 Anthony Hall between 9:30 and 11:30 a.m. Monday through Friday, with Rennie, or with James G. Benziger of the Department of English.

The capacity of the aircraft is 108, Rennie said.

According to the work office many of the other students work off-campus, but records are not complete for off-campus workers.

Men Prefer Tiny Waists And a Long-Legged Look

Elegance, by Genevieve Antoine-Dariaux, Garden City, New York: Doubleday & Co., Inc., 1964. $5.50.

Elegance is "a sort of harmony that rather resembles beauty," but which according to Madame Dariaux, is the result of art, while beauty is more often a gift of nature. One achieves elegance by knowing oneself which requires both reflection and intelligence.

The word itself, derived from the Latin "eligere," means "to select." To aid in this process, and with elegance assumed to be the goal of the reader, the book offers an alphabetical compilation of how to select for quality, attractiveness and appropriateness in women's dress—from Accessories to Zoology (woman and dog)! The author's experiences in the world of haute couture houses and with their international clientele allow her to speak with authority on what is truly elegant in dress for many activities, occasions, and localities.

While the book has many sections which apply to a more moneyed and cosmopolitan society than some of its readers may encounter, it offers much good information on the details that result in elegance, or in lack of it, and an opportunity for reflection on what one's own goals in dress may be—elegance, ostentatiousness, comfort, practicality—?

In the casual atmosphere of a campus community one may forget that what is practical or comfortable—plastic rain-hats, head scarves, the use of cleansing tissues for a cold rather than an attractive handkerchief, among others—is seldom elegant.

Very young women may be excused a certain eccentricity, "a sort of sporty negligence on which they themselves will smile later on." Elegance is acquired only at the price of numerous errors which are afterwards regarded as such. Discretion, but not drabness, is perhaps a synonym for elegance.

The author's comments on men's preferences in fashion may be of interest. Men think they like (but only in the movies) extremely tight skirts and pointed bosoms; false eyelashes; "femme fatale" lingerie; musky oriental scents; spike heels; and qualities of black fringe or red chiffon flounces. What they really like are full skirts, tiny waists and a long legged look; clothes in fashion but not avant-garde; furs and an air of luxury; almost any shade of blue, very pale and very dark gray, perhaps black; light sophisticated perfumes; and collars on suits and coats.

Miss Dariaux's ability to turn a phrase makes the book both entertaining and readable; its organization makes it an excellent book for browsing.

Forces of Good Are Swamped In Quagmire of Dictatorship

El Senor Presidente, by Miguel Angel Asturias, translated from the Spanish by Frances Partridge, New York: Atheneum, 1964. $4.50.

"In my house the first thing everyone, down to the cat, has to learn is that there are never grounds for hope of any description for anyone. It's only possible to go on holding a position like mine if you obey orders; the President's rule of conduct is never to give grounds for hope, and everyone must be kicked and beaten until they realize this fact."

These words of the Judge Advocate General, hatchman of El Senor Presidente, (whose el Senor Presidente, obviously, his intent is to represent the evils of dictatorship everywhere rather than just in his own country. The forces of good cannot assert themselves in the all-enveloping quagmire of corruption, intrigue, brutality, and murder which el Senor Presidente, promotes as deliberate policy. The action, projected in nightmarish dimensions through the use of vanguardist techniques and imagery, takes place in bars, prisons, brothels, palaces, and numerous other places expertly interlocked in the story to convey a total sense of nausea and terror.

El Senor Presidente is an impressive achievement in its poetic naturalism, and as a social document, in the sinister, contemporary implications of its content.

In the reviewer's opinion, El Senor Presidente represents the most successful effort to date of an Ibero-American writer to turn the raw materials of social protest into an artistic work of fiction.

Government's Farm Policy Criticized

American Farm Policy, by Don Paarlberg, New York: John Wiley & Sons, 1964, 375 pp.

In several aspects, this is a most unusual book on governmental farm price and income policy in the United States. First, it has no bibliography, no references except for sources of tables and relatively few tables and charts to create an interruption in the flow of discussion.

Second, it gives the impression of having been written "off the top of the head" but really is a well-organized, well-balanced presentation of the author's views of the pros and cons of controversial policies.

Third, it is written in language understandable to the layman and the undergraduate student. Fourth, although written by an economist, it gives recognition to the ethical, historical, sociological and political influences on policy.

In the preface, the author states that "a judgment on 'what should be' is limited by 'what can be,' and 'what can be' is related to 'what is.'" He argues that the policies which can be used are limited because of existing conditions.

Starting with an agricultural creed with seven tenets, the author points out how each has been bent or modified by developments over the past half century.

His section on the politics of agriculture delineates the provinces and overlapping of

He then briefly discusses the basic philosophies of the various agencies of policy-formation such as the general farm organizations, the U. S. New Light on Old Myths

Africa Is No Longer 'The Dark Continent'

Africa and Africans, by Paul Bohannon, Garden City, N.Y.: The Natural History Press, 1964, 260 pp. $1.25.

"Africa has, for generations now, been viewed through a web of myth... pervasive and so glib that understanding it becomes a twofold task: the task of clarifying the myth and the separate task of examining whatever reality has been hidden behind it," writes Bohannon in the first chapter of the book.

The myths which Bohannon makes strenuous effort to clarify are numerous: the dark continent; the lions in the jungle; savage Africa; the myth among American Negroes about what Africa is and what its nature is; the myth that African nations must be either for us (Americans) or against us in the Cold War.

The book covers numerous fields on Africa: the peopling and peoples of Africa, African families, African art, African religions, African markets, and the new scramble for Africa which he also calls the "African struggle for Africa." This "ideological struggle" writes Bohannon, "... is a search and a struggle for new forms of society, new forms of religion, new forms of culture that preserve African moralities and sensibilities at the same time that they allow African countries to drive toward economic and political leadership."

Bohannon is an anthropologist, and so this book has an anthropological approach towards understanding Africa and Africans. He incorporates into his work the most recent researches that have been done on Africa, including works by L. S. B. Leaky and Professor Raymond Dart.

His analysis of African land and labor, African politics and courts, are extremely valuable in understanding the economic and political theories which are taking shape in Africa today, such as African socialism and one-party democracy.

His real success is the challenge which he has put up against myths. He challenges the science of phrenology in "linking physical traits with mental ability." He challenges the concept of "the great chain of being" by which all living beings could be fitted into a hierarchy, classifying human races on the basis of skin-color.

Bohannon would have emerged without any stain of subjectivity if he had left out altogether the last twelve pages which comprise part IV of the book with the title "Africa and the Modern World."

In this section, he has failed to abstract himself from the "myths" of today's westerner on Africa. The myth against one-party rule lingers in his mind. Thus:

"When African apologists for one-party rule say that it is the African legal genius to 'beat things out' and then to present a united front, they are absolutely right. This does not mean that they did not learn many of the forms in which to do so from the colonial powers. It is not to say that any particular kind of 'traditional' sentimentality cannot be used to cover up most of the sins of African leaders—of course it can."

He also comes up with erroneous statements such as that Africans "are asking who they are, and in the process of finding the answers, they are creating the new myths to back up whatever it is that they are becoming."

In several instances in the last part of the book, Bohannon seems to have fallen—to quote his own words—"at the mercy of the old myths in the hands of the rewrite men who receive their material for much of the daily press."

However, as he says, it is not necessary for westerners or Communists to like what they see in Africa. It is important to understand it. And, to that end, Bohannon has done a marvelous job.

Fortunatus S. Masha

than "returning to the free market". He states that a long-range program for agriculture must recognize several conditions. We must learn to live with abundance, use research and education to promote adjustments, including that from crops to grass, trees and recreational uses, and explore all sorts of new ideas and innovations.

We should reduce price supports and place increased reliance on individual decision-making. We must recognize that poverty is the lot of many farm families and is not corrected by price and income programs. If these changes are to be made, they cannot be abrupt but must be spread over a long transitional period.

In summary, this book is a readable, well-planned presentation and criticism of present farm programs, and of the difficulties and opportunities which policy makers face in their attempts to promote a sound agricultural industry. It provides good background reading for anyone who raises his voice in farm policy debate.

He's Up in the Air

High-Flying Gymnast Aspires To Even More Lofty Heights

By Alan Goldfarb

Frank Schmitz spends a great deal of his life in the air. He intends to conquer the upper strata in more ways than one.

Frank Schmitz currently spends his time only about 15 feet in the air, but he intends to go much higher than that one day.

In case you're wandering what the heck he does up there and in case you're wondering who Frank Schmitz is, SIU gymnastics coach Bill Meade thinks that he is one of the top trampoline prospects in the country--and he's only a freshman.

Schmitz, who is from Lafayette, La., where most people have probably never heard of a trampoline, just returned from a tour of South Africa, where he represented the United States Gymnastics Federation.

Touring through Cape Town, Johannesburg, Port Elizabeth, East London and just about every village and town in South Africa, Schmitz was one of three Americans to compete against the South Africans in their South African Games.

"The tour was somewhat like the gymnastics Peace Corps," smiled Schmitz, his white teeth flashing against his well-tanned face. "We tried to help them in the sport. The Games are similar to the Pan-American Games, but are staged every four years," he explained.

Schmitz, who is the 1962 AAU trampoline champ, and a three-time Louisiana state champ, won five of the six meets, as did the American contingent, losing only to teammate Steve Johnson of Michigan State.

"The Africans have a great setup, one of the best I've seen," the handsome blond commented, "but they don't regard competition very highly. Nothing seems to bother them. The only person I could get mad at was Steve (Johnson). We got on each other's nerves because we were actually the only ones 'competing' in the meets."

Schmitz spent seven weeks in Africa and didn't receive the news that Southern had won the NCAA championships until two weeks later. He promptly sent a postcard back to Carbondale. It read, "I'm so happy for you, I'm glad to be a part of such a great team." The 5-foot-7 South-erner (who doesn't speak like one) broke down and cried. He was happy.

Besides crying, Frank also laughs a lot. He loves to clown around. Southern fans might have remembered two "kooks" performing zany stunts on--and mostly off--the trampoline between halves of a Saluki basketball game. The two clowns were Schmitz and another outstanding freshman prospect, Brent "Miami" Williams.

Without any reservations or modesty, Frank says that Southern has the three best tumblers in the country in himself, Williams and Steve Whitlock. Unfortunately, the NCAA is eliminating the event from dual meet competition next year.

Nevertheless, and despite the fact that he is only a freshman and the Salukis will lose national champ Rusty Mitchell next year, Schmitz didn't hesitate to assert that "We (SIU) will definitely win the NCAA championship again."

As far as he's concerned, he says his chances are pretty good for an NCAA blue ribbon on the trampoline next year and that he'll probably be in the top six in vaulting (long horse) and free exercise when the Salukis host the NCAA championships.

Frank is also a diver. He dove for the Saluki freshmen in a few meets this year, but it took up too much of his time. Next year he intends to enter a few meets for the varsity.

The trampoline and diving are somewhat similar in that Schmitz is in the air half the time. But the altitude that he hits will be nothing compared to the heights he'll probably reach upon graduation from Southern.

As one of his older brothers, Frank wants to become an Air Force pilot. He's a physical Education major, but doesn't really want to teach gymnastics. Right now he just wants his college degree and to keep up with his gymnastics.

Most important to him, though, is flying. He's undergoing some good training, bouding his small frame off the trampoline or off a diving board. He'll probably be flying pretty high next year, or the next three years, as he is probably one of the top threats in collegiate gymnastics in the country.

Frank Schmitz is a flier!

FLYING HIGH - That's Frank Schmitz, completing a trick on his specialty, the trampoline.

Volleyball Team Wins 5 of 13

SIU's girls' volleyball team closed out its season by winning five of 13 games in a tournament at Washington University last weekend.

The SIU teams split four games with Webster College, but were able to win only three of nine games against Washington University.

Six squad members have been selected by their teammates for this year's honorary team. The six are Judy Miller, Jane Huckelbridge, Nancy Bischoff, Bonnie Adams, Linda Hoffman and Charlene Summers.

Season's Last Home Match On Today's Net Schedule

Southern's highly-ranked tennis team makes its final home appearance of the year today when it meets the netters from the University of Tulsa at 1:30 p.m. at the University Courts.

The match will be the fifth in six days for Coach Carl Sexton's netters who have won their first 11 matches of the year.

The Salukis competed in a quadrangular meet at Madison, Wis., over the weekend and beat all three opponents including Big Ten entries, Wisconsin and Iowa. The sextet swung into action again Tuesday afternoon, travelling to St. Louis to meet the squad from Washington University.

Today's match will be the last home event of the year before the Salukis wind up their season on the road against three rugged Midwestern opponents.

On Saturday the Salukis travel to Bloomington, Ind., for a match against Indiana followed the next week by matches against Northwestern and Notre Dame, the only two teams to beat the Salukis in 1963 on their way to a 16-2 mark.

Freshman Fined On Theft Charge

Robert Gruen, an 18-year-old freshman from Greatneck, N.Y., was fined $50 plus $15 costs in Magistrate Court Monday on a charge of shoplifting.

He was accused of taking a pair of cowboy boots from a discount store. He allegedly put the boots on and walked out the back door.

The Office of Student Affairs put him on disciplinary probation through summer term and referred him for counseling. He must make a 3.0 grade point average or accept a six-month suspension.

Strike Is Ended At Edwardsville

Sixty members of labor union Local 179 have agreed to return to work on a construction project at the SIU Edwardsville campus, according to the Associated Press.

They walked off the job two weeks ago, causing a layoff of skilled workers. General contractor for the project is the Fruin-Colnon Construction Co. of St. Louis.

A spokesman for the laborers said they objected to certain working conditions which the company agreed to correct.

Under construction is $12 million in new buildings on the campus.

After their first 11 matches, Coach Sexton has three men with perfect marks in singles competition. The Spengelmeier brothers, Bob and Roy, have unblemished records of 11-0 and 9-0 respectively so far this year.

Also on the unbeaten list is Al Pena, a sophomore from Bogota, Colombia. The lanky South American has won his first 11 singles matches and is also unbeaten in doubles competition after nine matches.

Texas Tour Games Uncounted In Baseball Squad's Record

With Southern's baseball season half over, the Salukis have already chalked up 10 straight wins and no defeats. The Salukis won three of the 12 games played on the spring tour in Texas, but these games will not be counted in the overall team record.

However, in the individual statistics department, records are kept from all 22 games.

Batting averages of starters: Kent Collins .374, Bob Bernstein .353, Mike Pratte .333, Al Peludat .318, Jim Long .305, Gene Vincent .286, Terry Lynn .275, John Siebel .275, Gib Snyder .254 and Johnny Hotz .176.

Collins leads in hits with 26, followed by Peludat and Siebel with 20 apiece. Long is out in front in the RBI department with 14 while Siebel is close on his heels with 13, followed by Pratte with 12.

Siebel has also scored the most times, crossing the plate

16 times. Pratte leads in home runs with two while Collins, Long and Peludat have rapped one each. Collins leads in doubles with seven, and is tied with Bernstein for triples.

In the pitching department, Hotz has compiled a 6-1 record while the "other half" of the Saluki mound staff, Gene Vincent, has a 6-2 overall record.

Hotz has been most effective, however, with an earned run average of just 1.32 for 52 2/3 innings. Vincent's ERA is 4.26.

During the regular season, both pitchers have been near perfect as Vincent has allowed three earned runs while Hotz has only allowed four.

Overall, Hotz has given up 31 hits, 10 runs (7 earned), 18 walks and 56 strike outs. Vincent has been a little less effective by yielding 35 hits, 24 runs (20 earned), 32 walks and 49 strike outs.

As a team, the Salukis are hitting a lofty .286.

THE TROUBLE WITH SPORTS SHIRTS IS WHEN YOU WEAR AN ORDINARY TIE WITH ONE YOU LOOK LIKE A GANGSTER

HOWEVER there are times that are a little too dressy for an unadorned throat (as when you're wearing a blazer), and for these the Ascot is finding increasing favor. Women apparently find them madly attractive, and men like their go-to-hell feel once they get around to wearing them. The trick seems to be in tying them; actually, there is nothing to it. All you do is slip the Ascot around your neck, inside the collar, and loop one end over the other below your adam's apple; and loop it twice so it won't slip down your chest after awhile. ★ It just so happens that, foreseeing this demand, we have gone into the Ascot game. You will find a nice selection at your Eagle Ascot store, which is the same store where you buy Eagle Shirts. ★ Not to change the subject, but this magnificent short-sleeve sports shirt at about $9.00 which we have portrayed here is an exclusive Eagle pattern in two-ply cotton oxford, and comes in blue, green, or burgundy stripes alternating with skinnier black ones on an Eagle's Cream ground. ★ We also have a magnificent matching check; let's see if we can describe it: it's something as though we ran transverse stripes in the same colors across this pattern. No, that's a terrible description, you'd better go take a look for yourself. If you don't know where that would be, drop a line to Miss Afferbach and she'll write right back with the news.
